

PEYTON - ANCESTRY

The Peyton family were early settlers in co. Cork, Ireland aka: Paighton

From Ballymoney and Kinneigh Parish Records the table information was obtained. Some of the relationships in the early years had to be assumed. The best effort was to determine the baptism, marriage and death dates and to assume that all these Peyton's were from the original parents. I realize this is a broad assumption since the Peyton family had been in Ireland since 1795 but a lot of the names, children's names and dates make the various relationships believable. From my initial information there is one major problem; however, the information below looks correct. My major problem is that the parish records show Jane Peyton marrying William Good in 1850. If Jane was a daughter of Francis and Arabella then the dates do not fit. If Jane was the daughter of Joseph, who married Jane Bibby, who was the son of Francis and Arabella (Willis) Peyton then she would be a cousin to William Peyton Phillips. In the letter of 1852 William Hayes Phillips mentions that "...your Aunt Jane called her son Robert". Jane did have a son named Robert in 1852. Why is she called Aunt Jane when dates show that she was born 3 years before William P. Phillips? Both Phillips's and Peyton's 'line-up' using William Hayes Phillips and Anne Peyton as the common reference. Christian names in italics are from my original list and which names I did not find in the parish records. The biggest problem is that the records start in 1805 for Ballymoney and 1795 for Kinneigh. Oh Well!

10		Francis PEYTON [c.1775] and Arabella WILLIS The Peyton family is found in the Kinneigh and Ballymoney records and these records are be viewed in the hope of determining all the relationships within the records. The records do show that there was a daughter Anne baptized in 1810 and being the daughter of Francis and Arabella. In the 1851 Griffith's Valuation an entry shows an Arabella Peyton occupying property in the town of Ballyneen. There are some Willises in the parish records also.
