IRELAND

The Roberts family is first found in the town of Stradbally, Queens County, now know as co. Laois, province of Leinster, Ireland. A memorial deed date 18 May, 1754 that tells us that Arthur Roberts [c.1712-1754] was an Inn Holder at Stradbally and the book 'Stradbally County Laois, 2nd edition printed by JPF in 1989 shows that this inn is now know as Tony's Place. Aside from some other buildings in Stradbally, Arthur held 120 acres, known as Rathmore, next to the town. In the memorial it tells of his wife - Elizabeth Godfrey and his siblings - Stephen, James, Francis, Anne and Elizabeth.

It appears that Arthur and Elizabeth had no issue as the memorial only mentions brothers, sisters, nephews, nieces and grandnephew.

According the 'Stradbally book' the inn was passed to Henry Roberts.

At this time in the research we have a problem identifying an Abel Roberts. There is an Abel Roberts who is called a nephew in the deed of 1754. We have strong evidence that he was of this family but no absolute proof. Abel was a locksmith at Stradbally and the following poem suggests that he and Stephen may have been brothers or first cousin. At this web site <http://www.setdance.com/journal/miscdanc.html> I found the following:

April 1740: 'The Lord Chancellor Windham of Ireland dismissed George Hartpole of Sherule Esq. his Bill against Hunt Walsh of Ballykillcavan Esq. on ye 27th July 1738 and Mr. Walsh sent his people to my town of Stradbally to buy drink, and drink about a bonfire which they made in ye town but Cos Francis Cosby kicked and put it out, and would not suffer a Bonfire in the town at all, ... ye 17th March 1739 the House of Lords affirmed wt ye Lord Chancellor had done the 27th of July 1738 between Hartpole and Walsh and ye news of it came to Mr. Walsh to Ballykillcavan Friday ye 25 April 1740 at 10 o'clock of ye night, and the next day Saturday Mr Walshes servant and people came to Stradbally with Garland, piper and Long Dance, and the townsfolks, particularly Stephen Roberts, and Abel Roberts met 'em on ye Bridge, bid 'em go joyce on Walshes estate, and not come into Stradbally, and bid 'em go back wh. they refused, but were rushing on, on wh the townsfolks brook ye Bagpipes and ye Garland all to pieces, Beat all the Ballykillcavan folks very Heartly, and made 'em return very shamefully, ...' (pp 435-6).

A memorial deed of lease between Pole Cosby of Stradbally Hall and Abel Roberts where Abel is leasing land from Pole.

The next well known Roberts is Arthur Roberts of Stadbally the son of Stephen Roberts mentioned above. This Arthur was born in 1742 at Stradbally and he married Elizabeth Browne of Portarlinton, Queens county in 1775. He was the overseerer to Stradbally Hall and in the 'stone room' of the Hall is a stone which has inscribed "Built by Dudley Lord Sydney, 1772 Arthur Roberts Overseer." Arthur's will of 1825 listed 94 names and was so complicated that it was sent to the Court of Chancery of Ireland and was finally settled in 1846.

*A Memorial Deed of 17 June, 1846, Browne Roberts of Ravensborne Park, Kent, England eldest son and heir at law and sole surviving Trustee named in the will of Arthur Roberts formerly of Stradbally, Queen's County, Ireland. 09	Arthur ROBERTS [1742-1825] and Elizabeth BROWNE [1758-1841] son of Stephen Roberts; born at Stradbally, married Elizabeth Browne on 26 Mar, 1775; they had the following issues: Brown Dallen (Dudley); Stephen; Anthony; Browne; Jane; Sydney; Browne E.; Arthur P.; Elizabeth; Anne; Allan; Philip; John; Thomas; Francis; Catherine; Sarah; and Frances; overseer and director of Stradbally Hall; a memorial deed of 1784 between Admiral Philips Cosby and Arthur Roberts transferred the lands of Rathmore; Arthur is described as a 'gentleman' in the deed; died at Stradbally; buried St. Patrick's Church, Stradbally; his will of 1825 listed 94 names and was so complicated that it was sent to the Court of Chancery of Ireland and was finally settled in 1846/47. Elizabeth, possible daughter of Patrick Brown [c.1731-1798]; of Portarlinton (n. of Stradbally); died 30 Dec, 1841, ae 83yrs; buried St. Patrick's Church. The following is a historical reference to Stradbally Hall: "Stradbally Hall is still the home of the Cosbys, the only one of the Queens County tribes to have survived in their ancestral lands into the 20th century. Described by Brewer in his Antiquities of Ireland in 1826 as a commodious and eligible mansion, the first house was an O'Moore fortified tower which was obtained by the Cosbys during the reign of Queen Mary. This first Cosby fell in battle with the O'Byrnes at the age of 70 in 1580 having built himself a new castle with the stones of a franciscan friary. The house was enlarged in 1714 and a new front was added sometime after 1740, possibly to the designs of John Aheron, but in 1772 everything was demolished. The new house was built under the direction of one Arthur Roberts. This is the building which was enlarged and reclad to the designs of Sir Charles Lanyon in 1866-69. Inside there are some rooms with their original simple late 18th century plasterwork and others, like the top lit gallery at the head of the oak staircase, display the height of Victoriana with pink marble columns and elaborate decorative details. Sir Jonah Barrington has a a delightful account of a dinner party at Stradbally at which a certain half blind Dr. Jenkins was sitting next to his host Admiral Cosby. Mistaking the admirals brown gnarled fist for a bread roll he thrust his fork into it with uproarious consequences." Also in letter dated 1989 from Adrian Cosby, present occupant, points out that there is a Stone Bedroom in the 'Hall' with the inscription "Built by Dudley Lord Sydney, 1772 Arthur Roberts Overseer."

ROBERTS, Robert Henry Donald [1915-2001]

Robert Henry Donald was born May 6, 1915 in Chemainus, B.C. and passed away in St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver on May 27, 2001 at age 86. He was predeceased by his sister Doris Cheeke of Cobble Hill. Don is survived by his wife, Phyllis, his sister, Monica (Arne) Bergerson of Duncan, three nephews, Richard Cheeke of Victoria, David Cheeke of Montreal, Peter Cheeke of Corvallis, Oregon, and their families. Don will be fondly remembered by his family, including several cousins, and by his many friends. Don's early life was spent on Kuper Island, before his parents Percy and Isobel Roberts move to Duncan. After attending Normal School in Victoria, Don began his teaching career at Paldi on the Island. He later was a teacher and principal in Rossland and Trail. He concluded his teaching career at Centennial School in Coquitlam. Don's special interest in the history of B.C. was a natural outcome of his connection to three pioneering families: Roberts of Kuper Island, the Nagle family of Victoria, and the Holmes family of Duncan. His interests include tennis, golf, skiing, travel and music-especially opera. Bridge was a life-long interest which she shared with his cousin, Eileen.
